journing Saturday night, the object being to give members an opportunity to return to their homes before the Sabbath.

Rev. J. M. Phillips, of Tuscaloosa, read the report of the support of the Alabama Baptist State Convention, and recommended that a permanent fund be raised for this purpose.

Bro. Phillips made a good speech in support of the report.

W. C. Ward, of Selma, thought the work should be done by the associations, and not by the Convention.

Samuel Henderson, of Fayetteville, spoke in favor of the Convention's undertaking the work.

Rev. T. H. Stout, of Troy, thought it more expedient to commit the work to the Convention.

Rev. W. C. Cleveland, of Selma, saw great difficulties in the way of the Convention's doing this work, and thought it should not be undertaken. He thought the churches and associations would take care of all worthy objects of charity, whether ministers or private members.

Rev. B. H. Crumpton, of Mobile, favored the Convention's raising a trust fund if possible for the aid of indigent ministers and their families.

Rev. J. M. Phillips and Rev. S. Henderson spoke again in behalf of the resolution to raise a trust fund to be managed by the Convention.

The report was further discussed by Rev. W. C. Cleveland, Rev. Jos. Shackelford, R. C. Keeble, Rev. Matt. Lyon, Rev. J. M. Robertson, Rev. J. E. Chambliss, Rev. J. Faulkner, Rev. J. J. Stamps, and was finally adopted by a small majority.

The annual sermon of the Convention was preached by Rev. B. F. Riley. His text was Matt. 13:17, "For verily I say unto you, that many prophets and righteous men have desired to see those things which ye see and have not seen them, and to hear those things which ye hear and have not heard them."

The introduction of the preacher indicated clearly that he proposed to discuss the general subject of progress.

God's plan with respect to the race had ever been one of gradual advancement. And yet it was a fact, that at each successive stage of advancement the world had left its position with reluctance. Every reformer was, to some extent, a martyr to his convictions. This was due to the fact that men are enured to the habits of thought, and wedded to the formal routine of doing and saying things. The arrangement of the sermon was simple and natural, springing directly from the text. He considered (1) The advantages of the disciples and those contemporaneous with them over the prophets and righteous men of the past. (2) Our advantages over the early adherents of the reformation, and (3) The responsibility with which these advantages were coupled. The sermon was well received by those who heard it.

REPORT ON STATE MISSIONS.

The report submitted to this body at this session by the State Mission Board at Selma, presents such an array of the evidences of wise management and enlarged efficiency as should fill all hearts with gratefulness to God, and with expectations of final and complete success in this department of our work. The work of State Missions has steadily grown from its inception, every year taking still deeper hold on the hearts and liberality of our people. Very much of what was anticipated at the beginning has been already accomplished, and still opportunities and possibilities for a greater work among the churches and people of our State, open more than ever invitingly and hopefully with the coming of every year. There is yet a great work before us; there is much more land to be possessed. In village, town and city; in country, valley and mountain, the call for still larger and more earnest effort is constantly on us. Difficult questions as to ways and means must be solved, and the liberality of the Board's work. But the Convention and the Baptists of Alabama can confidently rely upon the wise judgment of the Board, and in the fear of God, and in the fellowship of the Spirit, we may and we should bid them good cheer, with warmest sympathy, and a constantly growing liberality. This work properly fostered, in its natural relations to all our other enterprises, laid out and carried on with history, the number of pupils in attendance last session was 132. Fourteen young ladies were awarded diplomas as full graduates at the close of the commencement. Repairs on the property before a year ago have gone steadily forward, until now it is in better condition than at any time since it came into the possession of the denomination. The musical department has been furnished with new and costly instruments, the study room has been equipped with new desks, the chapel has been refurnished, and the boarding-house recaptured and supplied with new furniture. The property is free of debt and the school is self-sustaining. The report was referred to the committee on education.

REPORT ON EDUCATION.

Rev. T. H. Stout, of Troy, conducted the devotional exercises.

Rev. Matt. Lyon, of Moulton, offered a resolution, that in future the convention meet on such day as best obtains the necessity of its attendance.

Rev. A. B. Woodin spoke of the need of the field. He made an earnest, practical speech, and closed with a pathetic appeal to ministry and laity to consecrate themselves to the blessed work of winning Alabama for Christ.

In 1871 the pay for pensions was $34,000,000. This decreased until 1878, when it was $27,000,000. In January, 1879, the law was passed allowing arrears of pensions, which, it was said, would amount to $4,000,000. This makes pensions commence at the date of the injury or death, instead of the date of the filing of the evidence to establish the claim, and removes other limitations on applications for pensions. This change in 1879 raised pensions to $36,777,000. In 1880 this was swollen to $39,777,000. For 1881 the pension appropriations were $65,282,000, and for the fiscal year just begun the House has voted $80,000,000 for pensions. The House appropriations committee estimate that $395,000,000 additional will be needed for the fiscal year of 1882-83, and $6, and the total expenditure for pensions during the next ten years will be $740,000,000.
