The establishment provided over by the gentleman whose name heads this notice is one of the most successful of Selma, and one of the most elegant of the South. The stock embraces everything in the line of householding goods in the grocery line, from the cheapest to the finest. In addition to this, you can find all the things in the way of fancy goods and notions that can be desired. The arrangement of the goods is exquisite, and the attention a purchaser receives makes one feel at home. Every piece of goods is warranted to be as represented. We could fill a column enumerating the advantages of this house, and yet a customer could truly say the list was not told. Mr. Mueller is certainly entitled to be hailed as the housekeeper of the South.

No task is well performed by a reluctant hand. [From the Tribune.] That wonderful catholic known as Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has given the lady a world-wide reputation for doing good. It is like a living spring to the vital constitution. Her Blood Purifier will do more to clear the system of impurities and purify the blood of the body than all the sanitary devices of the Board of Health.

Keep a holy trust in truth through every trial. Bear adversity with fortitude, and look to God in hours of temptation and suffering.

A SCRAP OF HISTORY.—In 1874 a revolution in the practice of medicine was inaugurated. Dr. Holman's Rake was introduced to the medical profession and to the public as a positive and radical cure for Malaria disease in all its complications, and their success has been so great and rapid that they have now become "household words" throughout the land.

Impure blood can be made pure, boils, pimples and other eruptions removed—the skin assumed a clear and healthy appearance—all by taking Sina's Liver Regulator, purely vegetable.

"Grain, Produce, Stocks," said a stranger as he passed a bucket shop. "That painter don't understand his business, or else he doesn't understand mine, and the granger." "Grain produces are the way to get rich to read. Got his 'w' in the wrong place."

$1500 per year can be easily made at home working for E. G. Ridout & Co., for Barclay Street, New York. Send for their catalogue and full particulars.—T.Y.

At the marriage of a colored couple at Brunswick, Ga., the other day, the bride was asked "to love, honor, obey, and cherish the man who she held by the right hand. She quickly replied, "I will just as long as he treats me right, and then after that I'll quit him."

SOAPS, some new varieties, cheap and economical, and at lower prices than usually asked for a good article.

Strangers visiting the curious old town of Marblehead are very apt to ridicule its peculiarities, but sometimes the wit of the fishermen there completely extinguishes the would-be-thoughtful-mun. A short time ago a stranger was driving near Fort Sewall, when his horse was headed directly for the ocean, hailed a fisherman who was standing on the shore with, "My friend, can I get to Manchester this way?" "Yes, sir," replied the sailor, "if your horse is well-oiled and you have faith, I think you can."

MY WIFE said I was a fool when I brought home a bottle of Parker's Genuin. But when she broke up my cough, drove away my rheumatism, and cured my baby, I thought that I had made an excellent investment.

"Boy," said a stranger to a lad who was blacking his boots in front of a hotel yesterday, "if I should give you a dollar would you first impulse be to go to the circus?" "No, sir," was the prompt reply. "My first impulse would be that it was a counterfeit bill!"

James has a cow added to the uncomfortable habit of switching her tail in his face while milking her. The other day Jones took the tail and tried to turn it into his leg. Jones is now walking about with aches and a remarking: "About the tenth time I get where I missed it. I oughter tried her tail to see if it was in the right place."

Opinion of Edmund P. H. H. Watson. GOLDEN'S LIQUID EXTRACT OF BEEF AND TONIC INVIGORATOR is a most excellent preparation. It is, par excellence, superior to cod liver oil, and I have seen it cure many of the most impaired constitutions, and an excellent preventive of malarial diseases.

Remember the name, GOLDEN'S—take no other. Of druggists.

For your experience of an old nurse. Mrs. Winklow's SOUTHERN SYRUP is the prescription of one of the best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and has been used for forty years by mothers for their children, and by nurses for their patients. It relieves the child from pain, cures dysentery and diarrhea, griping in the bowels, and wind and colic. It gives the child the child it rests the mother. Price 25 cents a bottle.

A TOTAL ECLIPSE of all other medicines by Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is approaching. Unsurpassed in bilious disorders, impure blood, and consumption, which is scrofulous disease of the lungs.

THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

A Star-hole in the Sky.

Two faces at a window, and a black, black sky above.

One was a face of delicate fairness; the other was round and rosy with health, plump as a full moon. Mabel Lee owned the first, and her brother Eddie owned the second. Mabel was ten, and Eddie eleven.

"No star-hole in the sky to-night, Mabel. Black, black everywhere."

"Yes, I see one, Eddie."

"Where?"

"Over that chimney."

Yes, just above the top of a neighbor's chimney that the night was fast swallowing up, Eddie saw a star. It looked like a little spark that had flown out of the chimney.

"Ah, Mabel, you find a star-hole in every sky," said Eddie. "If none were there, I believe you would pick one with the point of a pin."

Mabel laughed, and turned away from the window, leaning on her stout little companion's arm. As she turned, one could have seen the little girl was pitifully lame. But Eddie supported her, tenderly holding her up. It was a touching sight to see them going to school together, the real leaning on the stammer, and the stronger gently bearing the weaker.

Mabel was indeed famous for finding star-holes in the sky. As she went away from the window, she said to herself: "If I were not lame, Eddie might not be so good and take such care of me."

The next night after her discovery of the star near the chimney, she was going home with Eddie. She was not feeling very happy, for a little fellow, Timmy Thomas, had made fun of her walking. Mabel kept it all to herself, and did not tell Eddie. She was now so sorry that she was lame, and there were big tears in her blue eyes, but she did not let Eddie see them.

Suddenly the tears were started away, for Mabel and Eddie heard a loud scream.

"Oh, help me—do! do! Oh, help me—do!"

"Somebody is in the water—fallen from the wharf," cried Eddie. "Come this way, Mabel."

As he spoke he led Mabel through a big gate that was open into a large wood-yard. This yard opened down to a wharf, and in the water clinging to the wharf was Timmy Thomas. After leaving Mabel and Eddie, he had thought it would be fun to run from one wharf to the other, up to the wood-yard wharf, but he had missed his footing, slipped and fallen down—down in the water. What a pitiful, be-seeing face he turned up to them!

"Quick, quick!" he cried. "Oh, help me—do!"

"Hold on, there, Timmy!" Grip fast and get firm," called Eddie. "I will soon have somebody here."

Off ran Eddie, saying to Mabel: "Now you stay here till I come back," and because Mabel was lame, she was obliged to stay behind.

How she wished she was strong! Wouldn't she run away for help!

"But there, I can keep him company, and that will do some good," she thought, looking down at the unfortunate boy in the water.

"Poor Timmy!"

"Mabel," he cried, pitifully, "won't Eddie bring somebody soon? This pier is slippery, and I can't cling good, and I am afraid I can't hold on long."

What could Mabel do?

She turned about, and looked through an open door into a shed on the ground. She slipped into the shed, and there, indeed, was a rope at one side. And it was knotted!

"Perhaps Timmy could cling to this," she thought.

She took it back to the edge of the wharf, wound one end of it two or three times around the pier to keep it from slipping, and then threw the knotted end into the water. How Timmy did cling to that knotted end!

"I can hold on to this," he said.

"Can you?" asked Mabel. "I am glad." There she was above holding on to her end, and below was Timmy clinging to the rope.

Eddie came back very soon, followed by a man quite strong enough to hold Timmy.

"Ho, ho!" he said. "What have we down here? A fish on the end of this line? Can you hold tight if I pull you up?"

"I think I can," said Timmy. "The knot helps."

"Well, hold on! Up, up she comes—there!"

And Timmy was landed on the wharf as neatly as any fish ever pulled out of the dock.

"Look out next time, sonny!" said Mr. Gray. "If it had not been for this little girl, you might have been down where the fishes are, and for good, too."

Then Timmy turned to Mabel.

"Oh, Mabel," he said, "I am sorry I made fun of you."

But Mabel said that was all settled, and she walked away, leaning on Eddie, saying to herself:

"There, if I had been able to run like other folks, I shouldn't have staid with Timmy, and couldn't have helped him."

So she found another star-hole in the black sky.

For fear of the questions he might ask, and though they all loved Parson Maynard, with his white hair and mild, pleasant face, yet Ada felt that she was called to pass through a terrible ordeal.

But she was very womanly, in spite of her twelve years; and now she said to her sisters:

"Don't leave me alone. Let us all sit down on the sofa and see how well we can behave."

"I ate them fennel in morn'g last Thursday afternoon, and I told 'em 'I'll remember 'em,' said Ruth, who was four years old and would skip."

"I saw him look right at me when I pushed you, Clara," said Sallie; "but I'm going to hold my cat any way." And she took up old Grim, who had been dressed in a doll's cloak and hood, while enjoying her after-dinner nap.

"Don't talk any more, girls. Don't see, he's getting out. I'm going to put on mother's half-handkerchief and white apron, so as to look older."

And while the minister was tying his horse, Ada slipped into the other room, and came out dressed as usual, like a little old woman, that children burst out laughing. Now Parson Maynard knelt, and Ada whispered:

"All stand up when he comes in. Sallie do cover up that cat!"

"How do you do, my little girl?" And the old gentleman bowed as respectfully as if it had been her mother.

"Are your parents at home this afternoon?"

"No. They have both gone to Lowell. Won't you please come in?"

"Yes, I will stop a few moments, as I may not be able to call again for some time."

He took a seat in the arm-chair. His eyes resting with an amused expression upon the little girl, he said to her, who immediately seated herself at the head of the three others. Sallie folded her arms, Clara took hold of Ruth's hand, and all four were motionless as statues.

"I believe you all attend meeting and Sunday-school. Do you not?"

"Yes, sir," said Ada.

"Do you remember the texts of last Sabbath?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," said Genesis, thirty-third chapter and first verse, in the forenoon, and Luke, twelfth chapter and second verse, in the afternoon."

"Very well; very well, indeed, my child. And could you comprehend the meaning of either discourse?"

"Yes, sir. I understood about Joseph's selling his brother—No, I mean the brethren selling Joseph."

"And could your sister, next tell me what her last Sunday-school lesson was about?"

"Yes, sir," said Sallie. "It was about Noah. I remembered it, because when I got home, Marcus, one of our hired men, let me get into the corn-chest in the meal-room and play I was in the Ark, and he said he'd be a whale on the outside."

"Poor Ada's face grew crimson, and she touched Sallie to keep still."

"Hold on, there, Finsinger!" Dr. Yacker called to her, who played, my little girl. I trust it was on Monday. Sunday is not a time for play." And the minister looked so seriously at Sallie that she hung her head and wished she hadn't told him. He continued: "Could the next tell me the names of Noah's three sons?"

"Yes, sir. Sham, Sam, and Japan!" replied Clara, promptly.

The corners of the old man's mouth quivered a little, but he did not smile.

"You mean Sham, Ham, and Japheth. That is right. Now, can this youngest girl tell me who was the oldest man who ever lived?"

"Yeth, this," said Ruth, trembling all over, yet determined to tell all she knew. "It 'th old Mr. Bethe. He wath at meetin' last Sunday. I thaw him."

"Oh! Mr. Maynard," exclaimed Ada, with tears in her eyes, for Ruth was her special care, "she does know about Methuselah."

"Never mind, never mind. I think you are well-behaved little girls and a credit to your mother; but remember, my children, there are graves in yonder churchyard no longer than yours would be, if you had not study your hearts. I will now say good-bye."

Just as he was shaking hands with Sallie, old Grim, the cat, woke up, and, seeing a strange man bending over her, made a plunge for the door, but being entangled by the cloak and bonnet, which she still wore, rolled over and over, spitting and growling furiously. Finally, getting on her feet, she darted through the open window, so close to the nose of the horse, who was quietly feeding, that he jumped up and down until his harness rattled.

Parson Maynard hurried out, and a broad smile lighted up his face as he drove away, for his last sight was of old Grim up at her head-dress, of which only a few scraps remained.

"There are so many of Har."

BY MRS. ANNIE PRESTON.

At a late Sunday-school Convention held in a pleasant New England village, I was much interested in the discussion, "How to draw children into the Sunday-school, and how to keep them there." There was a good deal of talent represented, in the pulpit and out, and a good many bright points made; but aside from the benefit that always arises from agitating a vexed question, I cannot see any result was reached.

Passing down the street at the close of the meeting, I came almost within the limit of the shadow of the church steeple, upon a group of little fellows who were playing marbles.

"There, my last one is gone," cried a short, stubby boy, excitedly springing to his feet. "You cheated, Tom Midway, and the boys all know it."

"Nonsense, Willie Hayden," spoke up a chubby-faced boy, "you always accuse some one of cheating when you are unlucky. You only think it fair play when you win."

The other boys laughed, and I stopped my brick walk to say:

"Did my ears deceive me? Can it be that such nice looking lads play marbles for keeps?"

"We call it for 'wins,'" replied the lad who had been called Tom Midway. "We keep the ones we win."

When Willie Hayden he likes the fun; when he loses he is cross. He has been unlucky to-day. We were laughing at him; that was what you heard."

"Do you think it is right to play for 'wins'?" I asked.

"Well, I don't know," replied the other boys, looking at one another. "They keep the ones we win. That is the way for you to get a boy on the street to play just for fun."

"That is play," I said, "now you must keep the ones for yourselves. Do you think it right? Now you boys have Willie's marbles, do you feel as if they really belonged to you like the ones you have bought and paid for?"

The boys looked thoughtful, but were silent and I went on:

"Do you think your Sunday-school teacher would think it right, should you ask her?"

"There are so many of her we could not ask her," said Tom.

His companion, who I learned, I must have looked puzzled, for Tom took off his hat, brushed back his hair and went on to explain, speaking very slowly:

"I will just tell you how it is, ma'am. We haven't any really Sunday-school teacher, like the one you read about in stories, who talks to you, you know, and writes to you, but she is hardly ever at church, and when she is there, she only once in a while comes to the Sunday-school, she is our teacher when there is a concert, or a picnic, or anything going on. When she isn't there some one else takes our class, and it is always some one who says, 'Oh, dear! I do not do anything with that class, or I never knew what to say to such boys,' and then she goes away, and we are left so much about us, that we can't help cutting up some, and they hurry up and ask the questions, and don't know whether we know the answers, and never explain anything to us, nor tell us stories; and next Sunday some one else takes the class, and we are left so much about us, that we can't help cutting up some, and they hurry up and ask the questions, and don't know whether we know the answers, and never explain anything to us, nor tell us stories; and next Sunday some one else takes the class, and we are left so much about us, that we can't help cutting up some, and they hurry up and ask the questions, and don't know whether we know the answers, and never explain anything to us, nor tell us stories;
