The Different Varieties and Where They Come From.

The old, original Wyandottes of the silver laced variety were bred in New York state for many years under differ-ent names and were introduced to many of the western states and were usually called American Scalrights. Along in Do Not Cut Below the Living Foliage the seventies they began to find a place in the showroom, and their admirers began seeking admission for them in the American standard. At the standard revision meeting of 1883 this breed was admitted to the standard under the name of Silver Laced Wyandottes. Their andsome color, together with their so great was the demand for them that anything resembling a Wyandotte sold

PRUNING EVERGREENS.

Common Mistakes. Evergreens shed an annual crop of leaves in the fall, just as deciduous rees do. The difference is that there is always a living crop of leaves on an evfalls. There are two or three crops of leaves on the tree at one time. It is beolump, rounded forms and elegant egg cause of there being so many on at record gave them a great boom. In fact, once that so many errors are made in the pruning of them at transplanting. The knife is used freely, the branches are clipped in quite close, and as there appears an abundance of foliage below the cut everything is thought to be right. Pretty soon this closely pruned tree dies, and then perhaps the operator may learn the fact that he had cut off every living leaf, those he had left being old ones which were about to drop. The foregoing information is from the pen of a Pennsylvania correspondent of Sardening, who also adds the following, all of which is especially useful to

> The foliage which drops about Octoper is practically useless for weeks beore that, so that an evergreen sheared as a deciduous one stripped of its leaves in late spring, and it dies. It is as effeetually killed as it would be if sawed off to the bare trunk. Besides this all that have had to work among evergreens know that, unlike deciduous trees, they rarely make new growth from old wood. There is no doubt that too severe a trimming of many an evergreen hedge has caused permanent injury to it, as the close cutting has to many a transplanted specimen. I have seen more than one arbor vitae hedge cut back below its foliage, never to become green again. An arbor vitae so denuded of foliage is of no further serv-

ONLY $3,500

We impress upon our readers the sacred duty to examine and weigh well the article to be found in another column, which appeals to the generosity and denominational pride of the Baptists of the state, Owing to the disastrous fire that consumed the old building of the Judson, this debt was incurred. It was the fault of no one. Hence none can excuse themselves from aiding, if able to do so, in paying off this honest and necessary debt.

One noble hearted, generous consecrated Baptist man has come to the rescue of this splendid institution, and now proposes to pay one-half of the $16,000 debt, if the other 110,000 Baptists will give the other half. Forty-five hundred of that half has been secured, and only $3,500 remains to be raised, and then the whole debt will be wiped out. Can't we, within the next twenty days, raise that amount?

Boys are men that have not got as big as their papas, and girls are women that will be young ladies, by and bye. Men was made before women. When God looked at Adam, he said to himself: "Well, I think I can do better if I try again," and then he made Eve. God liked Eve so much better than Adam that there have been more women than men ever since. Boys are a trouble. They wear out everything but soap. If I had my way, half the boys in the world would be girls, and the rest would be dolls. My papa is so nice that I think he must have been a little girl when he was a little boy.

Green bones are not used as extensively as they should be, because grain can be obtained with less difficulty and at a low cost, but as egg producing material the bone is far superior to grain, nor does the bone really cost more than grain in some sections. Rosa Multiflora Japonica. As described in Gardening, Rosa multiflora japonica is a stout bush, arching about the middle. The stems Leghorns and Black Spanish lay eggi are bright green and round, armed with strong and sharp spines. It flowers in great racemes of 20 to 50 flowers, each as large as a silver quarter, pure, bril-fiant white with bright golden stamens and a powerful perfume that brings the honeybees. The flowers last ten days. The heps are bright red and last all winter.

It is claimed that Rosa multiflora japonica is perfectly hardy. In the vicinity of Cambridge it is said that the tops have never killed back, although there was no protection except the mulch necessary to prevent too early action.

Budded Peach Trees. Numbered with other fallacies in horticulture is the idea that "seedling peaches are more hardy and reliable than budded trees." A writer in The American Agriculturist tested this and reported as follows: A large number of seedlings and budded trees were planted under identical conditions. Seven years after they were planted the percentage of loss among the seedlings was more he endured, and than double that of the budded trees.
