

EDUCATION

120 Dublin. University. Alumni dublinenses; a register of the students, graduates, professors and provosts of Trinity College in the University of Dublin (1593-1860) edited by the late George Dames Burtchaell...and Thomas Ulick Sadleir...New ed. (with supplement.) Dublin: 1935. xix, 905, 1, 118 p.

Bibliography: p. xv-xvi.

Entries include the student's name, classification (Pensioner, Sizar, or Fellow Commoner), school or schoolmaster, date of admission, student's age, father's name and occupation [some of which are in the original Latin] birthplace of the student, religion, and degree. Some entries are incomplete.

121 Maxwell, Constantia Elizabeth. A history of Trinity College, Dublin, 1591-1892. With a foreword by G.M. Trevelyan. Dublin: 1946. xiii, 299 p.

Bibliography: p. 281-289.

Traces the history of Trinity College, Dublin, from its establishment during Elizabeth's reign to 1892. T.C.D. has contributed many outstanding scholars since its inception - Sir William Cecil, James Ussher, Swift, Goldsmith, and Burke, to cite but a few. Reveals Trinity College's struggle to maintain its individuality, its humanism, and its dedication to scientific advancement and "polite learning."