

MEDICINE

- 438 Cummins, Nicholas Marshall. Some chapters of Cork Medical history. Cork: 1957. 116 p.
A collection of information on Cork hospitals and medical services, drawn from unpublished minute books and hospital records, family papers, scrap albums, and newspaper cuttings. The records show concentration of professional training in Protestant hands until the last century.
- 439 Dublin. St. Patrick's hospital. The legacy of Swift; a bicentenary record of St. Patrick's Hospital, Dublin. Dublin: 1948. 70 p.
St. Patrick's Hospital for the insane was the first such institution in Ireland, founded by a legacy from Swift (d.1745). Includes chapters on the modern hospital, its conception and subsequent administration and history, an account of the buildings, list of officers (1746-1948) and a catalog of the exhibition which consisted of materials on Swift, the hospital, and mental treatment in Ireland.
- 440 Fleetwood, John Finlayson. History of medicine in Ireland. Dublin: 1951. 420 p.
Traces the growth of the medical profession in Ireland from the pre-Christian era to the 20th century, summarizing its present importance in national life and discussing future possibilities.
- 441 John of Gaddesden. Rosa angelica sev Rosa medicinae Johannis Anglici; an early modern Irish translation of a section of the mediaeval medical text-book of John of Gaddesden, edited with introduction, glossary, and English version by Winifred, Wulff. London: (1923) 1929. lviii, 434 p.
Irish texts society. Publications, v. 25.
A translation from Latin giving Irish and English. Written probably in 1314, this work serves to indicate the state of medieval medicine. Its present value, however, is primarily lexicographical. It contains much previously uninvestigated scientific and medical terminology and expression. Includes vocabulary.
- 442 Kirkpatrick, Thomas Percy Claude. History of the medical teaching in Trinity college, Dublin, and of the school of physics in Ireland. Dublin: 1912. 364 p.
"References": p. 340-348.
"An accurate narrative of events in the history of the school and the lives of those who were responsible for its management." Includes early history from its foundation to modern development. Appendix lists names of medical staff.